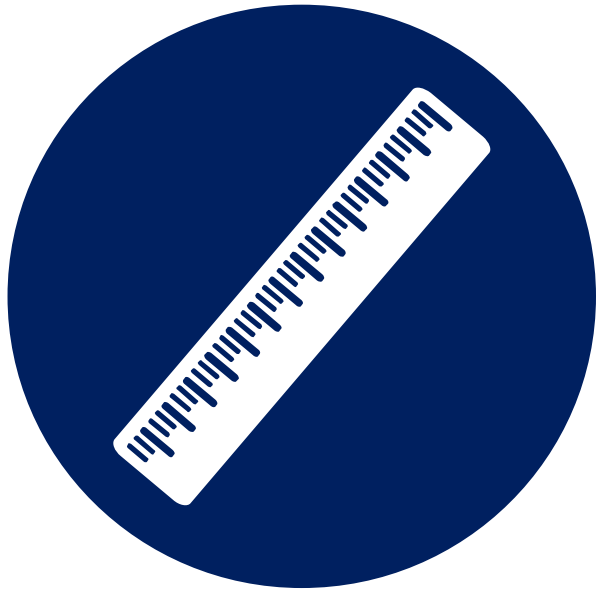
Introduction to Performance Measurement and Performance Measures

What is Performance Measurement?

- The systematic and ongoing collection of data about program outputs and outcomes to measure a program's progress towards its stated goals.
- The ongoing monitoring and reporting of program progress and accomplishments, using pre-selected performance measures.



What are Performance Measures?

Performance measures are indicators, statistics, or metrics used to assess program performance.

	Description	Example
Input	Program Resources	• Grant funding • Human resources • Employee time
Output	A countable product or service your program provides or produces. The volume of work your program accomplishes.	• Number of youth served • Number of trainings conducted • Number of technical assistance requests completed
Outcome	A change in knowledge, attitude, skill, and/or behavior that occurs within an individual, family, agency, system, or community.	• Family relationships • Job skills • Community involvement • School attendance • Gang resistance/involvement

Performance Measures

- Outcomes can be short term or long term:
  - Short term: The benefits and/or effects program participants experience while enrolled in the program or within 0–6 months post completion/program exit.
  - Long term: The benefits and/or effects participants experience that occur within 6–12 months following program completion/exit.
